To Whom It May Concern,

It's a genuine pleasure to recommend Molly Lennox. I've had the opportunity to work with Molly as her Senior Exhibition Advisor, her former English teacher, and time spent in the same building, and in every role, she has stood out as a truly exceptional student and leader.

Molly is incredibly smart and internally driven. She doesn't wait to be told what to do, she sees what needs to happen and takes initiative. Whether it's brainstorming creative ideas to improve campus culture or organizing events that bring people together, Molly leads with both vision and follow-through. She's one of those rare students who can think big and still manage the details.

Her leadership is natural and authentic. People gravitate toward her because she listens, includes others, and makes things happen. Molly cares deeply about her school community and consistently looks for ways to make it better.

Watching her grow through her Senior Exhibition project has only confirmed what I've always known: Molly is thoughtful, capable, and ready for whatever comes next. I have no doubt she will thrive in any environment that values creativity, leadership, and heart.

Please feel free to reach out if you'd like to know more about Molly's many strengths.

Sincerely,

Tonia Manges

RE: Molly Lennox

I have known Molly for a long time but have had much more to do with her in the last 3 years. Molly is an exceptionally intelligent person that has shown the ability to get a lot of work done in a short time. I have seen her separate herself from distractions to focus on her goals.

Molly spent a summer working with me in our business, and I found her very capable of grasping a concept and turning it into reality. She is creative, has a great sense of humor, and is willing to put the hard yards into a project when she can see the outcome. Molly is very competitive, but she is also able to work well with others on her team.

I feel that Molly's diligent work ethic combined with her creative approach would be an asset to any business.

I am available anytime at the number below for any further questions or clarification.
